

Responding to a Linport Poll

If you already have a Linport Applications account and a link to a particular poll, you can respond to the poll by following the link and logging in with your user name and password. But if you are new to Linport Applications such as the BTS Builder, then you will need to create an account by following these instructions.

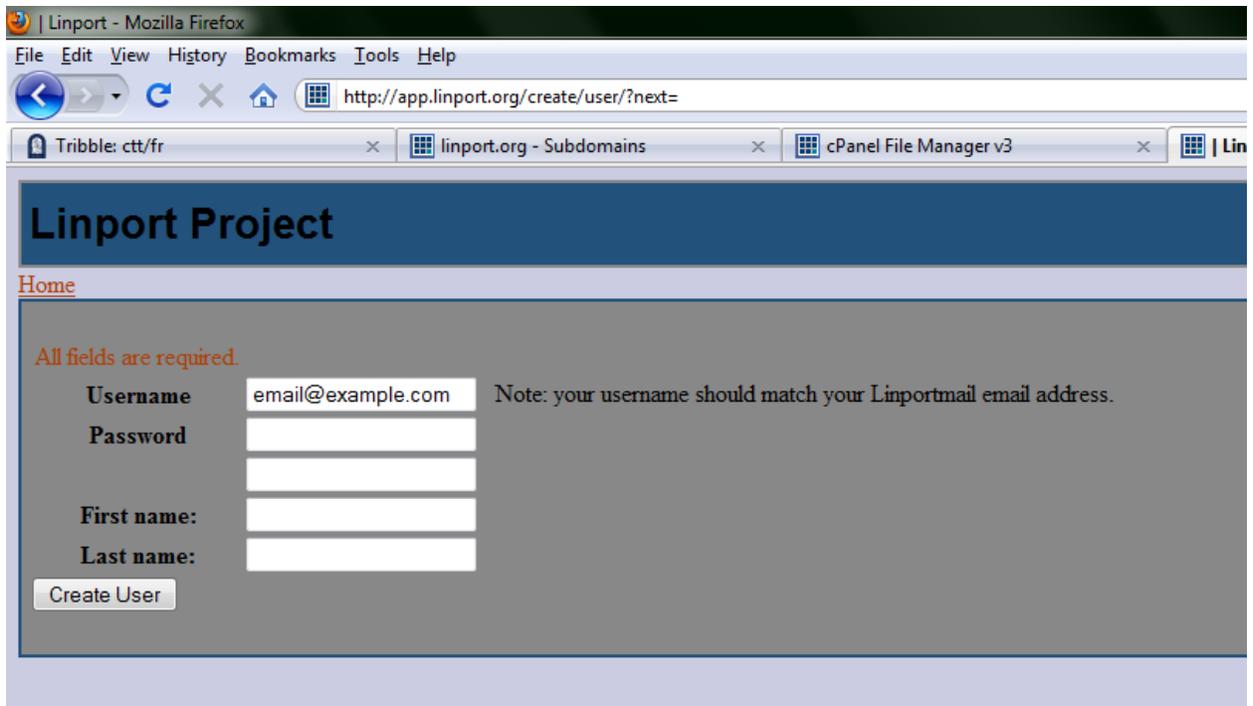

Go to app.linport.org, and click “login” in the topright corner.

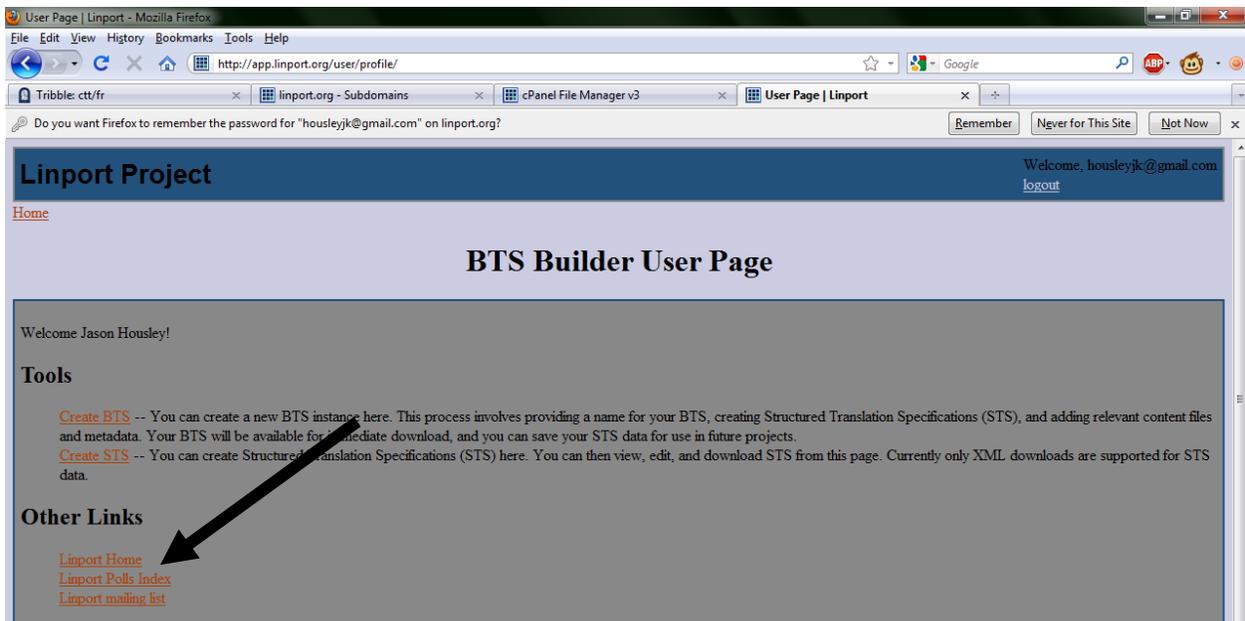

You will be taken to a login screen, but you will need a username and password to login. Create a new user by following the instructions below the username and password fields. (If you already have a Linport Applications user account, you may get to a list of all polls by clicking “Linport Polls index” on your user page.)

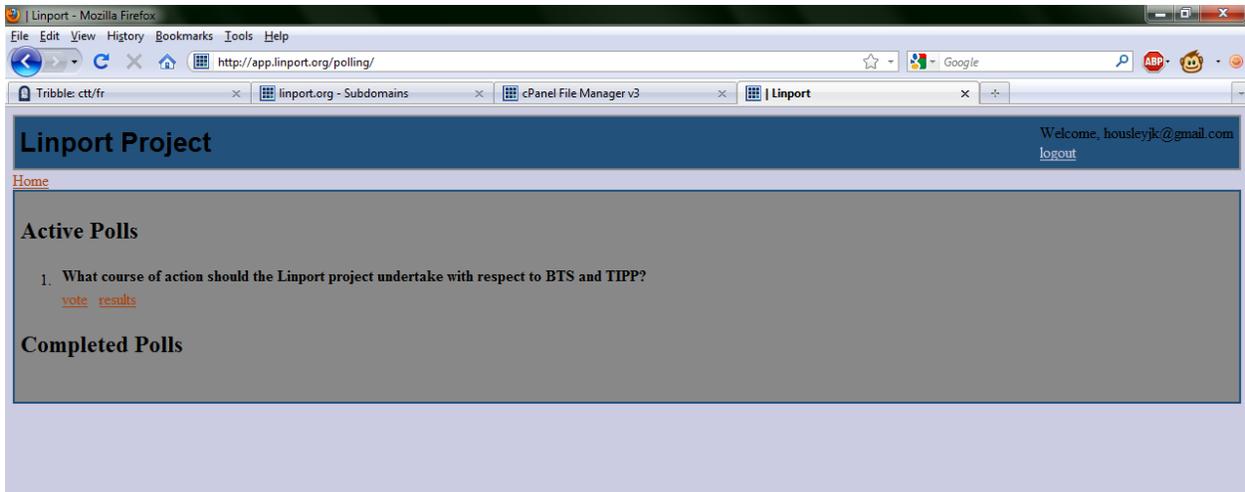

Create a new user by filling in all of the fields. Your username needs to be your linportmail email address. If you are not a member of the linport mailing list, you can join at linport.org. Click “Create User” to continue. You will then be taken back to the login screen.

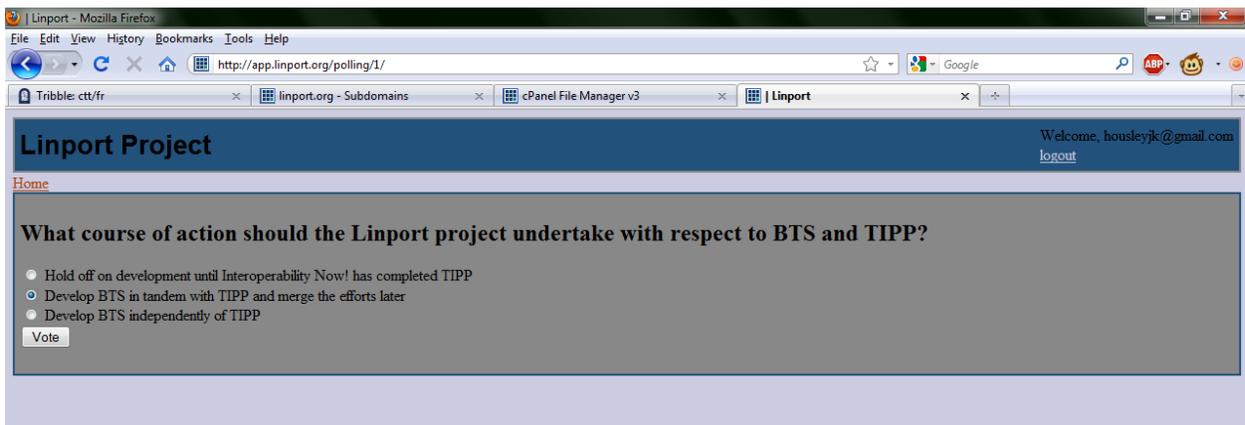

Login with your new username and password. You will then be taken to a user account page. On this page, click “Linport Polls index” to view the polls (or if you were provided a direct link to a particular poll, you may now navigate to that address to respond to the poll).

Polls can be either Active or Completed. If a poll is active, that means that users are still responding to it. You can respond to an Active polls by clicking “respond” or view the results of an Active or Completed poll by clicking “results.”

After clicking vote, select the response option you would prefer and click “Respond”.

Note that you can only respond once to any given poll.

Thank you for using the Linport polling system.
